* Benefits

Deep purple, with a supple texture and a ripe, earthy flavor, Alfonsos stand up to a full-bodied Cabernet Sauvignon for a lush appetizer or mix nicely with rice, garlic and peppers to make arroz al olivar, traditional Peruvian olive rice. While Alfonso olives are traditionally considered Chilean, the province of Tacna where they originated, in the foothills of the La Yarada Mountains, has been under Peruvian rule for decades. These are huge, deep purple olives that are typically brine-cured, then macerated in red wine.
